

This is a blatant attempt by the NAB to stifle competition, which they wouldn't have had they offered a choice of programming to their listeners. XM Radio gives listeners a choice and a format that is good enough that people will pay for that choice. I think this is an unfair restriction of trade, something that the FTC should be made aware of if XM is limited in the programming it is allowed to offer. Chairman Powell, don't allow the FCC to become a tool of money interests.
